

You have been lied to.

In recent weeks, Ken Livingstone's cronies have been visiting mosques in London to circulate offensive material about Boris Johnson. They have been misleading you with leaflets suggesting that Boris Johnson is anti-Islam, and they have associated him with the BNP. They have twisted his words and made deeply offensive accusations.

You have the right to know the truth. Here's what Boris Johnson really thinks:

On Islam: "My view is that Islam is a religion of peace."

On his own Muslim heritage: "What is most absurd about these allegations is that I am very proud to say I have Muslim ancestors. My great-grandfather knew the Koran off by heart."

On Ken Livingstone's dirty tactics: "I really wish he would leave off these kinds of tactics, which demean this race and demean his office."

On the BNP: "I utterly and unreservedly condemn the BNP and have no desire whatsoever to receive a single second preference vote from a BNP supporter."

On his London philosophy: "London is an incredibly diverse place. In this city, where over 300 languages are spoken, all the major faiths are celebrated openly and the vast majority of Londoners greatly enjoy the variety this brings. This glorious diversity is why, if elected as Mayor on 1st May, I will do all I can to encourage understanding, integration and harmony amongst London's communities."
